WRITING

Usually children go to school, but there are children with disabilities. Therefore, such children will study at home.

The advantages of learning in school are that the child can make friends at school, attend various events with the class. Also, the school organizes various circles in which children can express themselves.

There are children who study at home. The reason may be a state of health, but sometimes it is the desire of the parents. It's convenient to study at home, because you are in a familiar environment. You don't have to go anywhere, teachers come to you.

themselves. Some learn from video calling.

Nevertheless, I believe that studying at school is better, since such children get along much better with others, they are more sociable. ~~He~~ Also, not all teachers can come to the child and give him an item. But studying at home cannot be called bad, as there are children who are physically unable to attend school.
